H. ORPET CONFESSES TO KNOWLEDGE OF LAKE FOREST GIRL'S DEATH BY POISONING.

ADmits MEETING GIRL

Tells Detectives of Keeping Appointment With Her Wednesday Morning in Which She Pleaded for His Friendship.

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Feb. 12.—William H. Orpet, junior at the University of Wisconsin, early today confessed to detectives at Madison, Wis., knowledge of the death by poisoning of Marie Frances Lambert, Lake Forest high school girl, whose body was found in a wooded spot of Lake Forest on Thursday.

Orpet, in custody of detectives, is en route to Lake Forest where he will testify at the coroner's inquest into the death of the girl.
Admits Meeting Girl.
According to the statement of officers, Orpet said he met Miss Lambert in the woods near Sacred Heart Academy Wednesday morning by appointment. He said she pleaded with him for two hours to renew his friendship with her. He said he declined. Then, according to officers, Orpet said he left her and as he did, she swallowed the poison which caused her death.

Orpet did not admit he actually saw the girl die. He confessed, however, how to her a letter making the appointment, declined to continue as her friend, and later wrote another letter to be delivered at her home in Lake Forest after the death of her body. It was pointed out by detectives that the second letter might have been written to establish an alibi, the purpose of which was to indicate he had not left Madison on the night preceding the girl's death.

It was expected that Orpet would repeat his story to the coroner's jury today.

Given Long Examination.
Orpet's confession came at the end of a five-hour cross-examination at the hands of detectives and State's Attorney Dady of Lake County. He was asked to repeat the Madison episode after noon and it was midnight before he admitted that he had been with Miss Lambert on the day of her death.

Orpet to that time he maintained stoutly he had not left Madison and this was corroborated by his landlady, who based her statement on the fact that his bed appeared to have been slept on for several days.

The Lake Forest authorities today made a statement that Dr. J. J. James, a deaf mute, who claims to have witnessed the girl's death, James, according to police, saw a man walking in the woods with Miss Lambert, but he was unable to identify him as the man who had been seen by her.

Denies Being Witness.
Orpet was asked by police whether he saw Marie Lambert take the poison which ended her life in the woods near her home in Lake Forest, where her half-brother was found Thursday morning.

If I had only looked back, do you think I would have let her live there? he said, pointing to the dark woods where the body was found, as he reached the forest today in the custody of detectives.

Part of the mystery which surrounded the tragic death of Miss Lambert, was solved when it was discovered that she died of poison and that she had not been attacked. Orpet, after long questioning, admitted he had met the girl in the woods, and that he had then told her that he intended to do so.

Orpet is to be subject to further questioning. It was planned to take him to the woods where the body was found, and to have him retrace the steps he said he took, and then to take him to the spot where the body lay through the night until found by her father in the dawn.

Faces Mute's Evidence.
Before Orpet was to be confronted by David James, a deaf mute witness, who in a written statement said he saw Miss Lambert and a young man unknown to him in the woods on Wednesday, and that he saw the man press a bottle to the young woman's lips, Orpet is reported to have given the following account of his trust with the girl.

I went to Lake Forest Tuesday night and failed to make an appointment with Marie for that evening, so I made one for the next morning. We were to talk in the woods and I then told her I was figuring on marrying another girl.

I told her plainly it was all off between us. Then we arranged that I should leave the woods first, and take a car to Chicago, and that she should wait for me. I did that. She was to follow me in a few minutes and I had time to catch my car, and get out of her way. But she didn't do that.

Orpet and Miss Lambert were said to be friends of the young woman to have frequently in each other's company for several days.

There was delay in finding James, the witness, who said he saw the two in the woods, and Orpet, accompanied by officers, walked over the route which he said he and the girl had followed last Wednesday.

At one point the party descended into a deep ravine and at another Orpet stopped and told the officers that he had seen the girl, and that she was with the girl, when he told her of his engagement with another. At the three trees beneath which the girl's body was found, the party halted and Orpet said he saw the girl, and that he held the poison bottle. Orpet joined in the search, which was fruitless, and the story was advanced that the poison was carried in a paper or in a capsule.

TODAY WE PAY TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY

Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth president of the United States, born February 12, 1809.

Born as lowly as the Son of God, in a hovel, reared in penury, squalor, with no gleam of light or fair surroundings, without grace, actual or acquired; without name or fame or official training; it was reserved for this strange being, late in life, to be snatched from obscurity, raised to supreme command at a supreme moment, and entrusted with the destiny of a nation.

The great leaders of the day, were made to stand aside, were sent to the rear, while this fantastic figure was led by unseen hands to the front and given the reins of power. It is immaterial whether we were for him or against him; wholly responsible as the world, never witnessed before, he filled the vast space allotted him in the eyes and actions of mankind, is to say that he was inspired of God, for nowhere else could he have acquired the wisdom and the vision.

Who did Shakespeare get his genius? Where did Mozart get his music? Who had more the life of the great? The German priest, God, God, and God alone, and as surely as these were raised up by God, inspired by God, was Abraham Lincoln; and a thousand years hence, no drama, no tragedy, no epic poem will be filled with greater story of his life and death. A generation of address before the Lincoln Union, at the Chicago Auditorium, February 12, 1905.

GERMAN SHIP MAKES ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

German Steamer Interned in Brazilian Port Halted by Warship at Mouth of Harbor.
(By Associated Press.)
Rio Janeiro, Feb. 12.—The German steamship Asuncion, interned at Para, requested permission to approach a wharf to take water aboard. Under cover of the fog she turned about and headed toward the sea. The Brazilian cruiser Republica and the auxiliary Tefee fired blank shots, and as the Asuncion did not stop they fired over her. The captain later stated he had no intention of escaping. Local authorities have opened an investigation.

The German steamship Asuncion, constructed at Hamburg in 1895 is 4,655 gross tons, and is 375 feet long. She was built by the Hamburg-South America Steamship company of Hamburg and had been reported as remaining voluntarily at Para. It is to be presumed she was fired on under belief she was attempting to leave the port without proper clearance documents.

ALASKAN RAILROAD WORKERS TO STRIKE

Government Construction Work May Be Tied Up as Result of Action Calling Out 1,500 Laborers.
(By Associated Press.)
Seattle, Feb. 12.—A general strike of laborers employed on construction of the government railroad between Anchorage and Matanuska coal field, in Alaska, has been called, according to the latest advice received here from Seward, the Alaska headquarters of the Alaska engineering commission. Dispatches filed at Seward Wednesday said a mass meeting at Anchorage, principal construction camp, of 1,500 laborers, organized a federal labor union with an enrolled membership of 600 and immediately issued the strike call.

The men demanded increase in wages of common laborers to fifty cents an hour. The minimum provided by the wage scale issued by the government was thirty-five cents and hour and men on track laying gangs were receiving thirty-seven and a half cents an hour.

The section of the road upon which construction was halted is of fifty-mile branch extending from Anchorage to Matanuska coal field. Approximately thirty-four miles of this line has been completed.

BUSINESS FEUD IS CAUSE OF QUARREL BETWEEN DENTISTS

Four Men Engaged in Blood Battle in Hotel Room at St. Louis—Two Seriously Injured.
(By Associated Press.)

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—An affidavit found in Dr. Charles W. Kennerly's pocket today explained the cause of the fight with pistols, knives and dental instruments in a room in a local hotel last night, in which Dr. Kennerly of San Antonio, Texas, Dr. F. A. Johnson of St. Louis, Dr. A. J. Diefenbach of St. Antonio, and Charles Lody of St. Louis were injured. Johnson and Kennerly were former college classmates, former business partners, and are lodge brothers.

In the affidavit Dr. Kennerly told the story of a life ruined, both financially and physically, and accused his former associate in the dental business of failure to pay a $25,000 debt, and of withholding other funds which Dr. Kennerly claimed were due him. The affidavit asked that Dr. Johnson be expelled from the Medical Association of alleged wrongs to Dr. Kennerly.

Condition Serious.
Dr. Johnson was at the city hospital today, having been injured in the fight, his face and body slashed, and a wound through both hips and the groin made by a single steel jacketed bullet. Dr. Kennerly also, but be it said, was not seriously injured. He was a prisoner at the hospital. A police charge against him awaits the outcome of Johnson's injuries.

Two other participants in the fight also were prisoners today—Walter A. Diefenbach, at the hospital with throat cut almost from ear to ear, and Charles Lody at police headquarters.

Diefenbach told of the plan used by Kennerly and himself to get Dr. Johnson to a hotel room. His story agrees in the main with that of Lody and Johnson. That during four years, while Johnson was in the dental business, he had been a partner in the dental business, and that he had been a partner in the dental business, and that he had been a partner in the dental business.

Johnson said as he entered the hotel room, Kennerly stepped from a closet and shot at him. I paid him a double-crossed me, he said. "It is true that I borrowed $25,000 from him, but he double-crossed me. I paid him a double-crossed me, but when I came to paying the principal, I did not pay it."

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT. "FALLS IN" TO RESIST GERMAN ARMY OF U. S.

City on Canadian Side of the Big Drop Ready to Repel the Rumored Hyphenated Army Force.
(By Associated Press.)

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Despite the strict censorship which has been imposed by Canadian authorities on the dispatch or publication of news of a military nature, information from reliable sources was received here today of hurried precautions taken at Niagara Falls, Ont., yesterday, to resist a threatened "invasion by German forces" from the American side. A force of soldiers estimated at five hundred men and three machine gun squads were rushed there from St. Catharines and placed on guard at the great power plants and international bridges. The men slept under arms last night.

The report was current that the "army" of Germans was on the way to the Canadian city from Buffalo. There apparently was no foundation for the war scare.

TEN MEN ARE NAMED FOR MURDER IN 1914

New York Police Secure Confessions From Two and Entire Plot Is Laid Bare.
(By Associated Press.)

New York, Feb. 12.—Ten men were named in the murder plot which resulted in the killing of Ernest Barr, the independent country dealer, according to a confession made today, the police say, by Frank Farrera, chauffeur of the murder car from which Barr was shot down. Seven men, the police say, were named in the evidence given by Farrera and Giuseppe Aricchiello, another self-styled participant in the murder. Barr was killed in the summer of 1914. According to Farrera $5,000 was paid to the instigator and to gunmen employed and to those who helped them escape after the murder. Farrera gave the names of several and the amounts they received, the police say.

EXPULSION OF ROMANIAN AND GREEK CONSULS

Germans and Bulgarians Send Officials Away From Monastir According to Athens Newspaper.
(By Associated Press.)
Athens, Greece, Feb. 12.—The Patria states that the Germans and Bulgarians have sent away the Rumanian and Greek consuls at Monastir, in southwestern Serbia, near the Greek frontier.

This is an act of great importance, the Patria continues. "It requires more than a protest. The Skoultis government pretends that the measure is general and directed against all neutral consuls, but there are no other neutral consuls at Monastir. Furthermore, this city has not the same interest for Rumania as for us."

Dr. Kennerly left San Antonio, Monday, for St. Louis. Mrs. Baker said, to appear before the grand jury against Dr. Johnson. Mrs. Baker has been in charge of his office here since. Mrs. Baker will go to St. Louis.

WHITE SLAVE RING PREYS UPON GIRLS IN CHICAGO STORES

State's Attorney's Offices Exposes Methods of Seducing Newly Employed Young Women Clerks.
(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Conditions of immorality among clerks in State street stores, which rival those exposed by the recent "Fox Trot Club" investigation, were revealed today by an announcement by Robert E. Hogan, assistant state's attorney, in charge of the juvenile court work. Many of the girls victims, said Mr. Hogan, are less than 16 years old.

"Through admission made by two men and a woman arrested in connection with the case of a young girl a month ago, I learned of the existence of a white slave ring working in big stores," said Mr. Hogan. "Young girls shortly after obtaining employment, are approached by another clerk who invites her to dinner and introduces her to a man friend. This man becomes attentive to her, taking her to a restaurant, endeavoring to meet someone else, and forces her into a life of shame."

Last week by investigators brought five girls to my office, and all told the same story. Some said their mothers had given them carfare every day with which to go to work, and that instead they had gone to these hotels, receiving five dollars of every week, six or seven dollars which they took home as 'salary' to keep up the deception."

Mr. Hogan said seven men and nearly 100 women have been named in the confession. Some of these persons already have been arrested, while actions of others are being investigated.

A man to whom the unmet diamonds were given to pawn was arrested in Kansas City for the robbery, Boone said, and was to free him that Boone gave himself up.

RESCUERS RECOVER BODIES OF EIGHTEEN

Six Others Entombed in Pennsylvania Mine Shaft as Result of Explosion.
(By Associated Press.)
Indiana, Pa., Feb. 12.—Rescuers worked throughout the night in an effort to penetrate the workings of the Jefferson and Clearfield Coal & Iron company mines at Ernest, where an explosion occurred yesterday. Eighteen bodies have been recovered, but according to officials of the company at least six men are still entombed.

Because of the condition of the mines the rescue work progressed slowly. A number of rescuers were overcome by gas, the condition of one, James McGuire, being so serious that it was necessary to bring him to a local hospital. Reports of the rescue work came from Pittsburgh station, in charge of H. M. Wolfert, arrived here early today.

WAS NOT ACCIDENTAL

Police Discover Chemical Laboratory in Rooms of Suspect Who Is Now Reported Missing.
(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Feb. 12.—Belief that the hundred guests made ill at the banquet of Archbishop Mundelein at the University club, Thursday night, were victims of a deliberate attempt to poison, was announced today by manager of the club.

According to his statement, a considerable amount of active poison was placed in the soup served at the banquet, by an employee in the club kitchen. The man was described to the police as a fanatic whose mentality possibly was disordered. The name of the suspected person was not divulged by Harry J. Doherty, manager of the club, who said that analysis of the soup had disclosed the presence of arsenic.

According to his statement, the suspected man did not return to his room after the banquet, and search of his apartments by the police, disclosed a carefully equipped laboratory and several vials of poison, one of which corresponded to analysis of the poison found by analysis of the soup.

Archbishop Mundelein was not affected, though many of the prelates and distinguished guests at his table suffered severely.

The police assert that among the effects found in the room of the suspected employe were many pamphlets on economic subjects together with a number of industrial workers of the World songs. The man was described as being a fluent speaker of German, English, Italian and French, and apparently well educated.

In his rooms, the police say, they found a chemical laboratory with flasks of various poisons, one identical with that revealed by the chemists' analysis. The police say they also found a number of books of an anarchist type.

The employe sought, according to Doherty, was a man, nineteen years old, who was turned by the club as an assistant to the chef last September. The club manager said this man had charge of preparing the soup.

He said that a man sought was sent to outside cities. He is believed to have come to Chicago from St. Louis.

The Jeweler's Experiment

A large jewelry manufacturing concern, recently began to experiment with newspaper advertising. A middle western city was chosen for the try-out, and within a week a large number of new dealers had been secured.

The jeweler knows that the article was good. They knew that as soon as the advertising appeared in the newspapers, demand would be knocking at their store doors.

They were quick to act as seen in the advertisement. Newspaper advertising not only stimulates consumer demand, but it rouses the dealer to quick co-operation.

Definite facts on this subject have been compiled under the heading, "The Dealer and His Friends," which will be sent on request by the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

PHONE GIRLS DANCE ON MONDAY EVENING

Annual Party of Bell Operators to be Held—Valentine Feature to Pre-dominate.

The Wisconsin Telephone company girls' annual dancing party will be held on Monday evening, Feb. 13, at the Lincoln school. Apollo hall has been secured for the occasion. Buss and Booth's orchestra of Monroe will furnish the inspiration for a long program of dances. The fox trot and one-step are to predominate with a sufficient number of waltzes and two-steps to please the most staid advocate of the now almost prehistoric ballroom gyrations of the Terpsichorean art.

The party falling on St. Valentine's day will be made a valentine affair. Pretty and appropriate decorations are to grace the walls of the hall. A number of operators from out of town will be in attendance.

GRADED SCHOOL FIVES IN GAMES AT THE Y. M. C. A.

In the graded school basketball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. this morning the St. Patrick's five won from the Lincoln school in a close game by a score of 7 to 6. The line-ups were as follows: St. Patrick's—Blick, Narock, Keating, Lawson, H. Blick, Casey, Luby, and Clark. Lincoln—Connell, Grant, Murray, Carey, Groff, Luchie, and Crowley.

The second game scheduled was to be played between the Jackson and Grant schools. The Jackson school five failed to put in their appearance so the contest was forfeited to the Grant.

The Industrial five completely swamped the St. Mary's by a score of 36 to 20. Catholics were optimistic and had little chance to win. Lutz and Myer scored all the baskets.

St. Mary's—W. Croak, Healy, H. Croak, K. Smith, and Sheridan. Industrial—Lutz, Myer, Jordan, Erickson, Boetty, and Kucly.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH OBSERVES CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR DAY

Christian Endeavor day will be observed tomorrow evening at seven o'clock at the First Christian church. A very interesting exercise entitled "The Light of These" has been prepared for the occasion. This marks the fifteenth year of the organization of the great endeavor movement which was inaugurated through the efforts of the pastor of the church in Portland, Maine. He was the great need for a training school of this sort for his young people. At the present time the movement has swept over the entire world in all the different denominations. Special music has been arranged for the meeting tomorrow and everyone is cordially invited.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Inasmuch as the annual meeting of the Commercial club will be held next evening, I take it that it would be an appropriate time for a number of the club to make a few kindly suggestions.

While spending a week in Minneapolis last summer I was impressed with the wonderful growth and prosperity of that dynamo of the west; a growth and prosperity, not of the boom order, but stable and progressive.

A city with an enthusiastic citizenship, full of push and vigor, with an individuality that impressed you at once. And I said to myself there must be a reason for this condition of affairs. There must be some guiding hand or power in this community, distinctive, strong and worthy.

In investigation I found that the Civic Commercial club, consisting of a membership of three thousand, were largely responsible for making Minneapolis the envy and pride of the west.

You will note that in naming the club the word Civic preceded the word Commercial. My opinion was confirmed by an article that I read a short time since in a well-known magazine. It was entitled "The Civic Club" and was composed of every representative of the community: from the laborer with calloused hands trying to support a family and pay for a cozy cottage, to the millionaires with their millions and state mansions.

The annual dues vary and are classified according to the estimated benefit derived by the member from the results of the club's action. Each member having the same influence and but one vote, whether he pays ten dollars for dues or as high as some of the members do, five thousand dollars. You will note that the word Civic precedes the word Commercial.

Six hundred of the members serve on committees all classes being represented.

The business of this club is not only to promote the commercial interests of Minneapolis, in regard to freight rates, city lighting, bringing in new industries and aiding old ones and advertising the city in general.

It has taken in more than that, it has taken heart and hand into the civic life of the city. It has advised the city officials in regard to public safety, accounts and finance, public affairs, streets and public improvements.

As a result there has been a most marked improvement along the whole line of city affairs and a civic spirit awakened that is well worth the while.

Some of the aldermen at first seriously objected to having their plans and methods of city government criticized and other methods suggested in their place. But the club being representative of every class of people in the city and having aroused a strong enthusiasm and spirit, were firm and strenuous in their demands for the public good.

The opposing aldermen saw the light and realized for the first time that they were not rulers "By Divine Right" but mere honorable agents and paid servants of the people.

As a result, the best talent of the club is now working in unison with the city officials to promote all the interests of the city, both civic and commercial, with unbounded enthusiasm and high class energy that never tires.

With the best of feeling and in a kindly spirit, I ask the question, Why not try the plan in Janesville?

F. P. STARR.

The Loan Band of the Congregational church will meet in the church parlors, on next Tuesday evening, February 15th, at 8:15. Mrs. Sue McFarland and Miss Estie hostesses. Leader, Mrs. W. S. Jeffers.

CATARRH LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Catarrh is as much a blood disease as scurvy or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but it cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It breaks down the general health, weakens the lung tissues, and leads to consumption.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is so successful in the treatment of catarrh that it is known as the best remedy for this disease. It purifies the blood. Ask your druggist for it.

MRS. HELEN PUFFER IS DEAD AT MONROE

Daughter of the Late Federal Judge Noggle of Janesville Succumbs This Morning.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Monroe, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Helen N. Puffer, daughter of the late Federal Judge Noggle of Janesville, died at seven o'clock this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. Hood, of this city. Death followed an illness of eight years. She had been bedridden for the last five weeks.

Mrs. Puffer was born at Beloit, May 14, 1838. She was graduated in 1856 from a young woman's seminary at Albion, New York and on December 23 of the same year she was united in marriage to Preston W. Puffer. They came to Monroe to reside in 1868. For nearly fifty years Mrs. Puffer was depot agent in this city. She passed away at 191.

Mrs. Puffer was prominent in W. R. C. activities and was department president for the year 1891-2.

Mrs. Puffer is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Hood and two granddaughters, Margaret and Helen Hood. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. N. S. Brunley of Canajoharie, New York, who was recently called here on account of Mrs. Puffer's illness, and Mrs. John McGlinchey of Payette, Idaho.

Funeral services will be held Monday at one-thirty from the home. Rev. Henry Willmann of the Trinity church at Janesville will officiate.

The Condition of Your Teeth is of Vital Interest to you

Each year sees the value of good dental service increasingly appreciated. More and more the public is asking for and expecting better dental service.

The importance of the dentist in health conservation is now more generally recognized. Physicians and surgeons, more than ever before, are seeking the co-operation of the dentist in their efforts to discover the cause of physical ailments and to cure them. The dentist is a very great and responsible factor in this responsibility. He must be able to help discover the hidden disease often located in the jaws, and eradicate the disease.

The more skillful and the more careful the dentist, the more keenly he recognizes the necessity for and the value of good dental work for the health of his patients.

The dental surgeon is no longer concerned solely with the repair, replacement and replacement of teeth. He is concerned most seriously with his patient's health and life. I am sure that more and more to consider the health of my patients in this personal relation.

WATER WORKS REPORT RECEIVED ON FRIDAY

Figures Show That Municipal Ownership Is a Financial Success—Council Holds Meeting.

The statement of the income account of the Janesville water department, municipal ownership, that was accepted and filed at the council meeting, demonstrates that the city made no mistake from a financial standpoint in purchasing the system. The report tends to show that a reduction in the water rates favoring the city would be short time because of the net profit obtained under the present rates. The report is not the aim of the city administration, except in so much as to pay off the bonded indebtedness.

The income account of the water department was reported from July 1, 1915, to December 31st, 1915, and also for the previous year that the plant was operated under municipal ownership. The total operating revenue from July to December, was $25,305.66; the total operating expense, $8,852.38, and the non-operating revenue, $1,111.11, making a gross income, according to the report, $16,564.39. The board of public works as the water board set aside $6,622.62 for the payment of the debt fund and the appropriation of the city funds for the construction of a new building, main extensions and hydrants and other improvements, which were paid for out of the city funds, amounted to $2,586.93. It leaves a surplus of $6,979.23 and the surplus from April 1, 1915 to July 1, 1915, was $4,742.75. Making a total surplus since city ownership began, after depreciation, amounts and taxes, and interest on bonds and new improvements, of $11,721.98 for nine months. The depreciation of two percent was listed as being $2,243.26 and the taxes, $1,285.92.

It is anticipated that the city commission will take up the matter of obtaining new water rates, with the approval of the railroad commission, during the next few months. The officials desired to obtain knowledge of the amount of revenue that the water works would yield and the average expenses before taking up the rate question.

The notice of injury filed by Ellen Ring, calling the commission's attention to injuries received from a fall on the sidewalk in front of 407 South High street, was received and turned over to Attorney Dougherty. It was alleged in the claim that a defective live walk caused the fall and that the most serious injury received was a broken arm. The council will either order a settlement in case they find the claim is justified, or refuse the same.

The petition of property owners on Cherry street asking for the construction of a sidewalk on the east side of the street from Center to Cherry street and on Cherry street was received and filed. City Clerk J. P. Rammann was instructed to receive bids for the purchase of sets of pressure oil sprinkling attachments to be used by the street department in oiling the streets.

John Dalton was appointed special police officer, without pay, by Mayor James A. Pathe and the appointment was confirmed.

The list of election clerks and officials as submitted by Mayor Pathe was approved. The officials for the primary and other elections this year will be as follows: First ward, inspectors, C. H. Eller, George H. Davey and C. H. Baker; clerks, H. J. McNamara, Thomas Downing, Walter H. Smith, Whitten and Thomas Mulquin; second ward, inspectors, S. C. Burnham, H. A. Moser, Charles T. Connell; clerks, C. H. Eller, George H. Davey and C. H. Baker; third ward, inspectors, H. J. Cunningham, O. S. Morse and George H. Smith; clerks, C. H. Eller, George H. Davey and C. H. Baker; fourth ward, inspectors, W. E. Spicer, T. J. Birmingham and Charles Atwood; clerks, John Dorn, S. A. Cooper and C. H. Eller; fifth ward, inspectors, J. A. Sutherland, Frank Bick, George L. Croft; clerks, Thomas Whales and Charles Pascoe; ballot clerks, Thomas Sullivan and George Kasper.

Councilman Cummings was absent from the meeting because of illness. The monthly reports from the chief of police, visiting nurse and city auditor were received and filed. On motion the council adjourned until Tuesday.

BELOIT DELEGATION TO ATTEND BANQUET OF COMMERCIAL CLUB

Expect Ten Directors of Beloit Association Will Attend Gathering Monday Night at Myers Hotel.

Ten directors of the Beloit Business Men's association are expected to be the guests of the Janesville Commercial club at the annual meeting which will be held Monday evening at the Myers hotel. An invitation has been extended to the Beloit men and it is understood that a delegation will be present. It is probable that several of the visitors will be called upon for remarks.

Arrangements were practically completed today by the committee in charge of the banquet and program and the affair promises to be a most successful one. A number of business matters of importance will probably be brought before the club in addition to the election of new directors.

Edward M. McLaughlin, secretary of the Madison Board of Commerce, is the event being the principal speaker of the evening.

CUPID'S CYLINDERS HITTING ON ALL SIX

Counting forty-two days since the This Year Break All Records—Better Than One a Day.

Counting forty-two days since the close of 1915, County Clerk Howard W. Lee yesterday saw a record established in the number of marriage licenses issued in the period. Exactly forty-two permits were granted, one for each day of the period of this year. Considering one Sunday and one holiday and one Sunday thus far this month, the figures are slightly over one per day. This is unusual for this time of year. June and October are the heaviest months experienced by Mr. Lee and his deputy, some days as many as six licenses having been issued.

Two permits were granted yesterday. Arthur Douglas Loe and Edna Pearl Childs both of Beloit, are to wed on Monday evening, February fourteen, and Ensign Stamp of the Salvation Army is going to perform the ceremony. Frank C. Eddy of the town of Beloit secured a permit to wed Olive G. Hamilton of Beloit.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Many of the critics who have been sternest in their exactions of American dramatists announce their belief that D. W. Griffith has "put over" the great American play at last. Mr. Griffith's wonderful spectacle-drama, "The Birth of a Nation."

For many years, American dramatists wrote able plays of particular states, cities or localities, ranging from "Alabama" to the "Henrietta" and from "Way Down East" to "The Great Divide." But no man seemed to grasp the whole spirit and genius of America until David Wark Griffith picked a suggestion for his theme out of Dixon's "The Leopard Spots" and "The Clansman" and started to develop it. A remarkable thing about Mr. Griffith's plan is that words (except for leaders and titles) did not enter into it. Perhaps words had cramped rather than aided previous fictionists and dramatists. At any rate, he placed speech with music, and the old-fashioned stage action and scenery by the pictorialized action of thousands of players in the great out-of-doors. In brief, he staged the great battles, struggles and critical events of 1861-70 under conditions as nearly as possible similar to the original.

The result of Mr. Griffith's efforts is a new and stupendous art for which no adequate name has yet been found. "The Birth of a Nation" combines spectacle, romance, domestic drama, comedy, tragedy, music and mechanical effects into harmonious ensemble that captivates equally the eye and the ear. In a presentation lasting two hours and forty-five minutes it epitomizes the life of a nation. This is something the old art could never do.

The obsolete so-called "stage unities" are thrown to the winds, and Griffith carries the magnificent story from the introduction of African slavery right down through civil war and reconstruction days to the final real union of south and north in the bonds of love and peace.

Among the distinguished actors in the cast are Henry B. Walthall, Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Hiram Cooper, Mary Alden, Josephine Crowell, Ralph Lewis, Joseph Henabery, Raoul Walsh, Donald Crisp, Howard Gaye, George Siegman, Walter Long, Elmer Clifton and Robert Herron.

Eighteen thousand people, 3,000 horses and no less than 5,000 scenes went into the making of the big spectacle.

"The Birth of a Nation" will play a triumphant return engagement at the Myers theatre for five days, starting tomorrow.

CHAPTER XX.

From Pike to Pike.

Kit was speechless with horror. His heart was beating so fast that he could hardly hear the words of the man who was speaking to him. The river was now a scene of confusion. The covering of ice was divided into immense floes, which were tossing a n d grinding under the force of the current. Then a m o n t m o n t f o r d ' s voice s t e a d y and calm. "Get off your horse, boy. We've got to trust to our feet."

Kit tried with all his might to subdue his excited horse, but the animal had better control over his own movements and was soon standing on the ice.

"Help, Montford!" gasped the boy. At the same moment the ice broke again, and the horse fell. Kit was in a condition to leap forward, but a desperate effort he managed to get his feet out of the stirrups, thereby avoiding a broken leg or worse injury. As he was pinned under the animal's heavy body.

Then the foe they were on and another one came together with such force that both were upended into a sea of pyramids. Kit was conscious of a moment of intense pain, and then he was in the water.

Somehow the old trapper had been able to retain his hold upon the foe. As he saw the foe disappear, he began to think that the boy could not possibly come to the surface alive. It seemed inevitable that he would either be crushed between two foes or be caught under a cake of ice and drowned. And indeed, the chances were a hundred to one that one of these would happen.

But when Kit had gone into the water he had grasped an edge of the ice. Then, the foe had been partly upon it. With the appearance of the foe, Montford's surprise may be imagined. Kit, alive, and apparently unhurt, was clinging to it. He saw the old trapper had bent down and stretching forward had grasped one of the boy's arms.

The foe, which by continuing in its present direction would allow the boy to escape, abruptly changed its course and now came with added force directed at the cake of ice Montford was clinging on. But the old trapper, exerting every ounce of strength at his command, dragged the almost unconscious boy clear of the water and up to temporary safety on the ice floe. The two foes came together with terrible force, but it was all for naught, for they had been cheated of their prey.

The next thing Kit knew he was standing unsteadily on the rocking ice floe, supported by the trapper's hand. "That was sure a close call," he murmured. "I thought I was a goner."

"So did I, boy," Montford answered. But brace up. We're far from being safe by a long way. We've got to jump from floe to floe until we get to shore. We may slip and we may get lost. Are you strong enough yet to jump?"

"I guess so," Kit replied. "I'm pretty near froze, and if I don't do something, I'll turn to ice."

"Ready, then?" called the trapper. "Follow me."

And he leaped from the floe to another some four feet away. He alighted safely, and turned back to wait for Kit. The boy jumped a moment later, but slipped as he struck the ice. However, Montford was on the watch for just such an occurrence, and was ready to catch him.

They were now on a cake of ice in the river, and were beginning to entertain some hopes of reaching the shore. Suddenly Kit espied an opening in the middle of the river which seemed to lead to a small island.

"That's the island!" he cried. "Can't we go there?"

Montford answered, "Of course we can. But what good will it do? The bank is steep and we won't be able to get up. And if we don't get up, we won't be able to get down. We'll be stuck there until next winter."

"But the river will be clear of floes. Little while now, and then what will we do?" cried Kit. "The biggest bunch of floes, from the top of the trees, will be coming down in a minute or so, and we must be on the shore."

Kit spoke, he made an exceptional long leap, but reached the shore safely. Then, just as Kit was about to follow, came a loud voice from the shore.

"What? Don't come a step further!" the bank was shouting at all. "The pair with a cynical smile. Kit was as he recognized the man. It was Jack, a prominent member of the gang of St. Louis. He was a thief, who had escaped conviction at the trial.

"Repeat, gentlemen," the man said, "keep your distance and I'll move you. But come any nearer, I'll shoot."

There was no mistaking his tone. Kit almost escaped the river to enter now by their old enemy. Montford hesitated, Kit whispered to him, "The island. It's our chance."

CHAPTER XII.

How Ned crossed the river. The attendant at the Keewauqua had said, Jack the wolf had been very anxious to go to the rescue party, and in fact it had been necessary to restrain him by force. The dog had not put in an appearance for the last two days. Now there was a good reason for this, for the opportunity had started out on the trail of the rescue expedition.

The trail was an elusive one, but he kept at his task and toward the end of the second day he came in sight of the party. At the moment they came within range of his gun, he fired three times in the Sasaschehewan river, and a whole band of yelling Indians were on the shore. The dog waited until the moonshiners had come away, and then ran down to the bank. There was no sign of his master, and so he flung himself into the water and began to swim.

When Ned Craig came to himself, he was surprised to see that the raging fire, which was the last thing he remembered, had vanished. He was in a warm sleeping bag, and although it was night, the country around him was by a large fire. Standing on the far side of this fire was a man, who before he could believe his eyes, he saw George Spencer. How could a man, who should be in prison at St. Louis, get here? And how did he ever get to be in this man's power?

For a few moments the robber kept on signaling with the blanket, but after a while he laid the blanket down with a look of satisfaction on his face. "Everything will come out all right in the end," he murmured, and then seeing that Ned was awake, he addressed him.

"Well, kid, how are you? It was real lucky that your nice horse brought you ashore right where I was, and be a while before I can get you out of here. I've just got to let your two companions cross the Canuck, and I guess he'll break before we get a big fire going for you, but a lotta good that does them."

Ned did not answer, and Spencer continued: "Get busy now, and climb in that bag. We are going to be in a hurry already, and we must cross the Bridger before morning, and come up to the Canuck in time to watch your friends and my friend catch each other. The river will break before morning and I've got a big snow to cross in. You see this used to be my country through here and everything is nice and handy."

Ten minutes later they were tiding swiftly toward the Bridger, which they reached about four o'clock in the morning. They crossed this safely, and passed on to the Canuck in the way. He did not think so much of the danger as he did of that of preparing such a reception. He mentally resolved to make a sudden rush at his captor if things became too bad.

It was well after daylight that they came to the Canuck river. The ice had, it appeared, broken up some hours previously and now the river was almost navigable.

"Come down away and I'll show you my new snow called Spencer. See, isn't it nice? No one would think of looking in that thick and see the rollers that the boat is launched by. I just have to give her a push and she slides into the water just as nice. Spencer was trying to start the boat as he spoke, then came from down the river a piercing cry, and some shots.

Spencer smiled. "Your friends have met my man already," he remarked. "You villain!" cried Ned, and he made a desperate leap at his enemy. But Spencer had been waiting for that, and he turned coolly and awaited the assault.

But before Ned could reach the man a lithe, sinewy form had sprung between them, grasping the robber by the throat in his long, powerful jaws. Before the astonished Spencer could attempt a defense he was forced to the snow. Ned's unexpected champion was Jack, the wolf hound.

As much as Ned hated the robber, he could not stand to see him killed by the dog, and so he was forced to call the animal off. Spencer was helpless for the time, and the boy bent over him and took his revolver. Then he tied the man securely, and tethered the horses.

"Come on, Jack," he called, "we'll see about what's happened down the river." And he gave a final push to the big snow, which glided down the rollers and out into the river.

TIE SOCKS WITH STRING. AS LACK OF RUBBER CLOSERS DOWN GARTER FACTORIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Vienna, Feb. 12.—The scarcity of rubber elastic has caused all the garter factories in Austria-Hungary to close down, as well as most of those in Germany. Elastic garters and suspenders are no longer to be had, except where, here and there, a dealer has some stock left on his shelves. Elastic strings which could be bought before the war at the rate of three dollars for 200 pounds, now cost from eighteen to twenty-four dollars for the same quantity, and are hard to get even at those prices. Thread has gone up from 10 cents to two dollars, and dyes have also doubled in price.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Flying Death.

Steadying himself with a splendid display of self-control and downright courage, Captain Vauquelin concentrated upon the management of the biplane.

The drone of his motor thickened again, its speed became greater and the machine began to rise still higher, tracing a long, graceful curve.

Lanyard glanced apprehensively toward the girl, but she continued in apparent unconsciousness that anything was happening out of the ordinary. Her profile still looked forward, and still the wind-whirl trembled against her burning cheeks.

Thanks to the racket of the motor, no audible reports had accompanied the sharpshoot of the man in the monoplane, while Lanyard's cry of horror and dismay had been audible to himself exclusively. Hearing nothing, Lucy suspected nothing.

Again Lanyard looked back. Now the Valkyrie seemed to have crept up to within a quarter of a mile of the biplane, and was boring on at a tremendous pace, its single spread of wings on an approximate level with that of the upper plane of the Parrott.

But this last was rising steadily. The driver's seat of the Valkyrie was occupied by a muffled, burly figure that might be anybody—De Morbihan, Ekstrom, or any other homicidal maniac. At the distance its actions were as illegible as its results were unquestionable. Lanyard saw a little tongue of flame lick out from a point close beside the head of the figure—he couldn't distinguish the firearm itself—and, like Vauquelin, quite without premeditation, he ducked.

Simultaneously there sounded a hard, ripping noise immediately above his head, and he found himself staring up at a long, ragged tear in the canvas of the plane, caused by a bullet striking it a-slant.

"What's to be done?" he screamed passionately to Vauquelin.

But the aviator only shook his head, and they continued to ascend rapidly, already the web of cold that cloaked earth and sea seemed thrice as far be-

He told himself that, if this were true, Vauquelin knew his business, and from this reflection drew what comfort he might.

And he was glad, very glad, of the wind-whirl that shrouded his face, which he believed to show nothing less than panic terror.

He was, in sober fact, quite rigid with fright and horror. It were idle to argue that only unlikely chance would wing one of the bullets from the Valkyrie to a vital point—there was the torn canvas overhead, there was that hole through Vauquelin's sleeve.

And then the barograph on the strut beside Lanyard disappeared as if by magic. He was aware of a slight jar; the framework of the biplane quivered as from a heavy blow; something that resembled a handful of black crumbs sprayed out into the air ahead and vanished—and where the instrument had been nothing remained but an iron clamp gripping the strut.

And even as any one of these bullets might have proved fatal, their first successor might incapacitate the aviator, if it did not slay him outright—in either case inevitably the result would be death following a fall from a height, as recorded on the barograph did the instant before its destruction, of over four thousand feet.

And they were still climbing. Now the pursuer was losing some of the advantage of his superior speed; the Parrott was perceptibly higher; the Valkyrie must needs mount in a more sweeping curve.

None the less, Lanyard, peering down, saw still another tongue of flame spit out at him, and two bullet holes appeared in the port wings of the biplane, one in the lower, one in the upper spread of canvas.

White-lipped and trembling, the adventurer began to work at the fastenings of his suit. After a moment he plucked off one of his gloves and cast it impatiently from him. Asprewail, it sailed down the wind like a wounded sparrow. He caught Vauquelin's eye upon him, quick with a curiosity which changed to a sudden gleam of comprehension when Lanyard, thrusting his hand under the leather coat, groped for his side pocket and produced an automatic pistol which Duero, learning that he was unarmed, had pressed upon him.

They were now perhaps a hundred feet higher than the Valkyrie, which was soaring a quarter of a mile off to starboard. Under the guidance of the Frenchman the Parrott swooped round in a narrow circle until it hung almost immediately above the other—a maneuver requiring, first and last, something more than five minutes to effect.

Meanwhile Lanyard rebuttioned his suit and, clutching the pistol, tried hard not to think. But already his imagination was sick with the thought of what would ensue when the time came for him to carry out his intention.

Vauquelin touched his arm with urgent pressure, but Lanyard only shook his head, gulped, and without looking, surrendered the weapon to the aviator.

Bearing heavily against the chest-band, he commanded the broad, white spread of the Valkyrie's back and wings, invisible beneath these hung the motor and the driver's seat.

An instant more and he was aware that Vauquelin was bending forward over the edge of the plane.

Aiming with what deliberation was possible, the aviator emptied the clip of its cartridges in less than a minute.

The reports rang out against the drum of the motor with an accent as vicious as the cracking of a black-snake whip.

Momentarily, Lanyard doubted if a single bullet had taken effect. He could not, with his swimming vision, detect any sign of damage in the canvas of the Valkyrie.

He saw the empty automatic slip from Vauquelin's numb and nerveless fingers, and vanish.

A frightful fascination kept his gaze constant to the soaring Valkyrie. Beyond it, down, deep down, a mile of emptiness, was that golden floor of tumbled cloud, waiting.

He saw the monoplane halt abruptly in its strong onward surge—as if it had run full tilt, head on against an invisible obstacle—and for what seemed a round minute, it hung so, veering and wobbling, muzzling the wind. Then, like a sounding whale, it turned and dived headlong, propeller spinning like a top.

Down through an eighth of a mile of space it plunged plummetlike; then, perhaps caught in a flaw of wind, it turned sidewise and began to revolve, at first slowly, but with increasing rapidity in its fatally swift descent.

Toward the beginning of its revolutions something was thrown off, something small, dark and sprawling—like that glove which Lanyard had discarded. But this object dropped with a speed even greater than that of the Valkyrie, in a brace of seconds had diminished to the proportions of a gnat; in another was engulfed in that vast sea of golden vapor.

The monoplane itself, scarcely less precipitate, spun down through the abyss and plunged to oblivion in the fog-wrack.

And Lanyard was still hanging against the chest-band, limp and spent and trying not to give way to deadly sickness when, of a sudden and without any warning whatever, the stentorian chant of the motor ceased and was blotted out by that immense silence of those vast solitudes of the upper air, where never a sound is heard save the voices of the elements at war among themselves—a silence that rang with an accent as dreadful as if it were the very crack of doom.

And, its propeller no longer gripping the air, the aeroplane drifted on at ever-lessening speed, until at length it had no way whatever, and rested without motion of any sort, as it might have been in the cup of some mighty and invisible hand.

Then, with a little shudder of hesitation, the planes dipped forward—inclined slightly earthward—and began slowly, and at first, as if reluctantly, to slip down the long and empty channels of the air.

At this, rousing, Lanyard became aware of his own voice yammering wildly at Vauquelin:

"Good God, man! Why did you do that?"

Vauquelin answered only with a pale grimace and a barely perceptible shrug.

Momentarily gathering momentum, the biplane sped downward with a resistless rush, with the speed of a great wind, with a speed so great that when Lanyard again attempted speech the breath was whipped from his lips and he could utter no sound.

Thus from that awful height, from the still heart of that immeasurably void, they swooped down and over down in a long series of sickening swoops, broken by pauses of negligible duration. And though they approached it on a long slant, the floor of vapor rose to meet them with the rapidity of a mighty, rushing wave; and in a trice the biplane was hovering an instant before plunging down into its cold, gray heart.

In that flash of hesitation, while still the adventurer gasped for breath and pined at his streaming eyes with an aching hand, pierced through and through with cold, the fog showed itself as something less substantial than it had seemed; blurs of color peered through its folds of gauze, and with these the rounded summit of a brownish knoll.

Then they lunged on, down out of the bleak, bright sunshine into the cool twilight depths of clinging vapors; and the good green earth lifted its warm bosom to receive them.

Tilting its nose, fluttering as though undecided, the Parrott settled gracefully, with scarcely a jar, upon a wide sweep of untitled land covered with short, coarse grass.

For some time the three remained in their perches like petrified things, quite motionless, and—with the possible exception of the aviator—hardly conscious.

But presently Lanyard became aware that he was regularly filling his lungs with air, sweet, damp, wholesome, and, by comparison, warm, and that the blood was tingling painfully in his half-frozen hands and feet.

He sighed as one waking from a strange dream and looked round.

At the same time the aviator bestirred himself and began a bit stiffly to climb down from his place.

Feeling the earth beneath his feet, he took a step or two away from the machine, reeling and stumbling like a drunken man, then turned back.

"Come, my friend," he urged Lanyard in a voice of strangely normal intonation—"look alive—if you're able—and lend me a hand with mademoiselle. I'm afraid she has fainted."

And, in fact, the girl was reclining inertly in the bands of webbing, her eyes closed, her mouth ajar, her limbs slackened.

"Small blame to her!" Lanyard commented, fumbling clumsily with the chest-band. "That dive was enough to drive a body mad!"

"But I had to do it!" the aviator protested earnestly. "I dared not remain longer up there. I have never before been afraid in the air, but after that I was terribly afraid. I could feel myself going—taking leave of my senses—and I knew I must act if we were not to follow that other. God! what a death!"

He paused, shuddered, and drew the back of his hand across his eyes before continuing: "So I cut off the ignition and whooped. Here—my hand. So-o! All right, eh?"

"Oh, I'm all right," Lanyard insisted confidently.

But his confidence was belied by a look of daze, for the earth was billowing and reeling round him as though bewitched; and before he knew what had happened he had sat down hard and was staring foolishly up at the aviator.

"Here!" said the latter courteously, his hand masking the smile—"my hand again, monsieur. And now for mademoiselle."

But when they approached the girl, she surprised both by shivering, sitting up, and obviously pulling herself together.

"You feel better now, mademoiselle?" the aviator inquired, hastening to free her from her fastenings.

"I'm better—yes, thank you," she admitted in a small, broken voice—"but not yet quite myself."

She gave a hand to the aviator, the other to Lanyard, and as they helped her to the ground Lanyard, warned by his experience, stood by with a ready arm.

She needed that support, and for a few minutes didn't seem even conscious of it. Then, gently disengaging herself, she moved a foot or two away.

"Where are we—do you know?"

"On the South Downs somewhere?" Lanyard suggested, consulting Vauquelin.

"That is probable," this last affirmed—"at all events, reckoning by the course I held. Somewhere well in from the coast, at a venture, for I do not bear the sea."

"Near Lewes, perhaps?"

"I have no reason to doubt it."

An odd, constrained pause ensued.

The girl looked from the aviator to Lanyard, then at neither—turned a trifle away from both and, trembling with fatigue and enforcing self-control by clenching her hands, stared aimlessly off into the mist.

Painfully Lanyard set himself to consider their position.

Never put anything in the laundry to-day that you kin wear tomorrow. Miss Tawney Apple went to Morgantown to-day on the cars without buyin' an orange.

Dinner Stories

Titian Smythe stood anxiously by as the great art critic bent over his masterpiece. That learned man, having examined the picture from every part of the studio, at last spoke.

"Splendid, my dear sir! I congratulate you on having got so much realism into your work, especially in these days of futurists and such like faddists. The realism and sense of depth that you have got into that impression of a coal mine is, I assure you, my dear sir, one of the best bits of work I have seen for many a day."

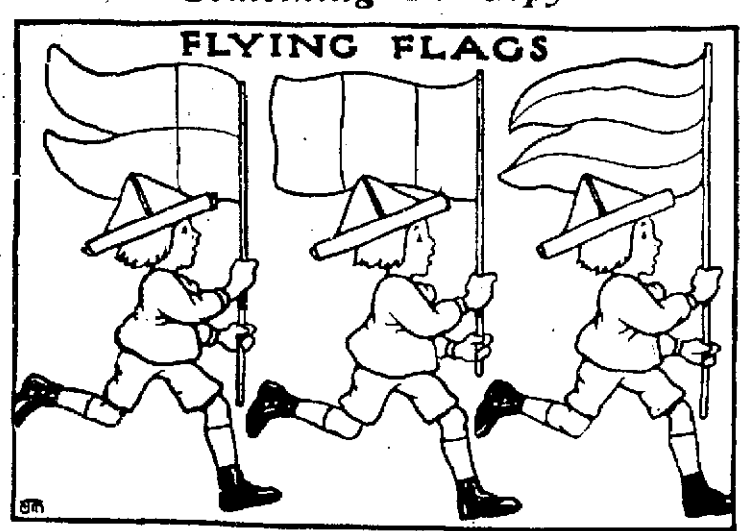

During this speech Titian's face had gradually tipped downwards.

"Coal mine?" he roared. "You fat-headed idiot, that's a birdseye view of Blackpool!"

"It is, indeed," answered the critic, picking up his hat and walking slowly to the door. "Then I am glad I don't live in Blackpool, and I am even happier to think, sir, that I am not a bird!"

A teacher was explaining to her pupils in the primary class the difference between civilized and uncivilized races, insisting upon the three things as requisites for civilization—food, clothing and shelter. The following day she resumed her subject, by way of review.

ACHES AND PAIN

Don't neglect a pain anywhere, but find out what causes it and conquer the cause. A pain in the kidney region may put you on your back tomorrow. Don't blame the weather for swollen feet, it may be an advanced warning of Bright's disease. A pain in the stomach may be the first symptom of appendicitis. A creek in a joint may be the forerunner of rheumatism. Chronic headaches more than likely warn you of serious stomach trouble. ## "Home of Character" No. 300

Here are two developments of a cottage which will interest everyone who wants the most for his money, and at the same time wants a convenient house and one that has a more than little architecture in its design. The plans are so drawn that either exterior can be used. While the house is only 22x26 feet on the foundation, it has a large living room and dining room, a very convenient and well equipped kitchen, and three large bedrooms and bath. Each bedroom has a good closet and there is a coat closet off of living room, an artistic mantel in living room, and a linen closet in upper hall. The basement contains laundry trays, coal bin, fruit closet and hot air furnace, and bathroom fixtures are porcelain enamel.

Living room and dining room finish is oak, with oak floors; remainder of house yellow pine, which can be stained and varnished or finished in white enamel.

The exterior is lap siding, with shingles in gable of one design. The roof is slate.

Cost as described $1800. With cheaper finish and equipment it could be built for considerably less.

Readers of The Gazette desiring further information concerning No. 300 are invited to write to "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." No charge for Mr. Newson's replies. Always give number of design.

LAKOTAS TURN TRICK OVER CO. E--10 TO 9

JANESVILLE FIVE WINS FIRST OF CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES IN HARD TILT.

WIN IN LAST MINUTE

Game Tonight Should Be Hardest Ever Played in City—Thrilling Finish Last Night.

With the game apparently lost, the Lakotas Cardinals came back in the last six minutes of play, fighting savagely and battling with spirit and main, and won the first game of the championship series with Company E of Fond du Lac at the Auditorium last night by the score of ten to nine. It was a wild and woolly battle, both teams exerting every ounce of power and stamina, with the Lakotas out-gunning and out-luckering the crack easterners in a finish that had the crowd of over five hundred almost frantic.

The Lakotas deserved to win. They combined their offensive with the eastern style of back passing and waiting with the brilliant attack of western play, until fortune favored them in the closing of the game. It was a close and rough combat. The Lakotas were outplayed the first half and were unable to score a field basket and Company E only scored one when Bradshaw dropped in a long shot that no one could have stopped. How close the game was is shown that there were only three goals scored by each team, and the victory was determined by foul goals and Hemming's trick.

Company E has lost none of its abilities at the "finer" points of the game. They can hold, push, shove, trip, wrestle, tackle and above all block as good as ever, and they did. It was open war at certain times, but not once did any of the players lose their heads and resort to futile encounters, but, instead, continued to play with strength to playing the game to win. Johnson, the old Colgate forward, did one of the dirtiest tricks seen at the Auditorium when he showed Dalton the proper and most forceful manner in which to trip an opponent when the referee was watching the team play. There were "odds" of rough play, rule violations, but that one act was about as "rotten" as all the others combined.

Start Was Slow.
It was an unusual game to watch. The contest looked slow the first ten minutes of play for a reason that both teams played on the defensive, lining up in battle array and employing tactics to keep each other away from scoring distance of the goal. Company E had a merry time dribbling and passing the ball in the rear end of the long floor, but the Lakotas stuck to their posts and refused to follow them for the first half. When the pseudo soldiers made a break to get near the goal the Lakotas "covered" and stuck to their opponents like a shadow, and they tried to shoot, the Lakotas clamped onto them like a porous plaster.

The passing stunts and slow dribbling did not make a hit with the fans, for they are fond of the action. This may be eastern style of play and basketball in the advanced stage, but for real action and thrills, the western style of play has it all over these tactics. But the game had plenty of it came the second half.

Company E Wins Half.
In the first period the Lakotas did not have a shot to win. They were outplayed on goal shooting and in the close guarding of Company E. The Janesville team did not score a field goal, although they came near hitting half a dozen times. Hemming scored first blood when he got loose a foul goal. Bradshaw was dribbling a few feet from him waiting for him to break down the floor, when the Osgood center took a second range and dropped the ball into the net. Roberts scored two fouls and Hemming added another point, making the half score 4 to 2 in favor of the easterners.

Half.
The tale was different in the second half, for the Lakotas fought harder, played together better, took fewer fouls and above all—won. Roberts was watching Editor and the Lakotas captain had his hands full getting loose from this stocky pugnacious guard, let alone getting shots. Edler showed some wonderful dribbling and shooting while guarded but none of the close shots dropped in the net. It was a toss-up between these two rivals until the better of the playing. Young was playing a wizard game and his shooting evened up the game. Fletcher and Hemming improved as the game went by until they were out-gunning their opponents by a safe margin. As for Dalton, he showed his old form on defense, keeping Robinson under cover and away from the goal.

Climax of Game.
Levine put a serious crimp into the Lakotas camp when he came down the floor and dropped in a side shot, making the score stand 6 to 2. Hemming counted on a foul. Young came up the floor and scored two straight goals, and when he scored his second goal he went was 8 to 7 in favor of Company E. Then came the climax with six minutes to play. Hemming scored a foul, tying the score. On the next play Fletcher made a mistake in catching the ball in the jump-up after a scrimmage, and Referee Langdon promptly called a foul. Five minutes of heated debate were evident over the alleged foul as the Lakotas claimed it was not an offense under western intercollegiate ball secrets. Editor and Roberts, held a warm oratorical session in the middle of the floor and the crowd was in a turmoil. Referee Langdon stuck to his decision and Roberts took plenty of time and dropped in the foul, putting the easterners one point to the good and with one and three-quarters minutes to play.

Hemming Turns Tide.
Company E tried to stall with the ball and when Bradshaw knocked the ball out of bounds the Lakotas gladiators passed the ball up the floor like a streak of greased lightning and under their goal the ten players battled fiercely and almost hysterically while the crowd was praying and cheering in the same breath. Hemming got a ball on a short pass and employed a quick dodge, wheeling around Bradshaw, ducking Johnson and dropping in a goal. There was no limit to the spirit of the crowd for hats and coats were thrown in the air and the Auditorium rocked from the cheering. The Lakotas managed to hand onto the ball during the remaining few seconds and they turned the trick that they had long hoped for, that of beating Company E at their own game.

Keeping Them Repeat.
The Lakotas will be forced to shift their lineup tonight and they will be even stronger than last night. Atwood, Roberts and E. Murphy will be available for the game. Hemming, center, Edler and Young guards. Dalton has a championship game at Dubuque, and his decision was to be faithful to his alma mater although he wanted to get another chance at Company E.

When Johnson stopped the Lakotas player never squaked a bit, as did Roberts when he got a jump, but he did his time. Johnson "got his" for that tripping stunt, and he had Dalton got to loving each other so well both would have taken a day off to go to the other's funeral.

The visitors showed the Lakotas some fancy tricks on blocking, for this was the only way in which they could advance the ball down the floor. Roberts on numerous occasions attempted to set the strange hold on Edler to allow one of the eastern guards a chance to go down the floor.

If anything the visitors got the edge on the officiating for Referee Langdon called six fouls on the Lakotas and five on Company E, and on out of bounds they got anything but the worst of it. But Company E had a gifted talent of getting in their wall-ups and pushes just when the referee had his eyes elsewhere. And when they knew they were safe, they combined the quietness of a duelist, pugilist, fire-eater and wrestler in bumping the Cards.

REPLIES POUR IN

When replies to Gazette Want Ads are so numerous, is it any wonder that nearly everyone uses the want ads when they have something to sell.

The Following Is Just One of the Many Experiences of Want Ad. Patrons

Janesville Daily Gazette.

Gentlemen: On Dec. 10th, I had an adv. inserted in your paper of which this is a copy:

FOR SALE—A good fresh milk cow, bred part Jersey and Galloway. Apply to Robert Clark, 1400 Milw. Ave.
Rock Co. phone 409 black.

Results, I had one call over the phone before my paper had reached me and one more after I had gone to bed. Sold her the second day following and kept on getting inquiries either by phone or otherwise for over two weeks after. The use of printer's ink certainly does the work and does it promptly.

ROBERT CLARK.

THE STORY HUMOROUS AND WITTY.
The humorous story is strictly a work of art—high and delicate art—and only an artist can tell it, avowed story; anybody can do it. The art of telling a humorous story—understand,

Four Questions Answered

What Is Life?

What Is Health?

What Is Death?

What Is Disease?

Life is the creation, transmission and expression of that innate mental force which comes from a superintellectual power beyond the scope of our finite comprehension, and is manifested by animation, functional activity. Death is the entire dissolution between the body and this innate mental force. Health is the normal or 100 per cent of life being created, transmitted, and expressed in all the body. Disease is anything less than the normal or 100 per cent of life being created, transmitted and expressed in the body, anywhere. Therefore health is life in its fullest meaning, and disease is death in degree, as disease progresses death approaches, and life is expressed in less degree.

CHIROPRACTIC

Not Medicine.

Not Surgery.

Not Osteopathy.

ITS PURPOSE

Chiropractic is the science or knowledge of the cause of disease and the art of adjusting it and the philosophy of why we should.

The human brain is the dynamo where all life for the body is generated.

The spinal cord and the nerves convey this mental force. The brain emits, spinal cord conveys, nerves transmit and tissues and organs receive these life currents, health is the product. If the transmission of life currents is obstructed, so that organs and tissues do not receive them, disease results. We find these mental impulses obstructed where the spinal nerves pass out from the spinal cord, or main nerve cable, between the bony segments, or vertebrae of the spinal column, commonly called back bone. A slight subluxation or displacement of one or more of these segments causes the delicate nerves to be pinched, resulting in weakness and disease at the nerve endings (tissues and organs). A chiropractor knows where and how to remove the pressure, which again permits the normal (100%) transmission of life currents, which in its turn results in the renewal of strength to the tissues, and the eradication of any disease you may be suffering from.

Body plus life equals health; body minus life equals death. Between these two quantities 100% of life currents and the total absence of them is an abnormal fluctuation called disease; the degree of fluctuation (extent of disease being proportionate to the degree of obstruction of life currents. Health is the result of the restoration of currents—NOT THE STIMULATION NOR DIMINUTION OF WHAT EXISTS.

Chiropractic Art

The art in chiropractic is to scientifically adjust by hand, with no other assistance, the abnormal position of the vertebra impinging the nerve that is passing either below or above a vertebra outward, thus permitting the mental impulses or nerve power to flow again over the nerves uninterruptedly to the affected organs or part. Thus it is not the chiropractor, but innate intelligence that cures. It means that the practitioner simply assists Nature.

ITS HISTORY

Chiropractic comes from the two Greek derivatives cheir (hand) and proxis (done by) meaning done by hand.

Chiropractic was discovered 1895 by Dr. D. D. Palmer, who by adjusting a Davenport (Iowa) man by the name of Harvey J. Lillard, and restored his hearing which had been gone seventeen years.

Later investigations proved that other diseases have their cause in the spine, and can be relieved by adjusting the spine. Dr. D. D. Palmer died and his son, B. J. Palmer, continued to develop the science, art and philosophy of chiropractic until today he is the greatest chiropractor in the world and president of the Palmer School of Chiropractic, (Fountain Head) with more than 600 students, equipment of $250,000.

RESULTS

Immense libraries of books have been written in classifying symptoms of disease into names for conditions or diseases. If the nerves passing out from the spinal cord are impinged at the eleventh dorsal vertebra. What cares the chiropractor whether the condition in the kidneys is named interstitial nephritis, diabetes mellitus, uremia, floating kidney, Bright's disease, or what not? If he adjusts that eleventh dorsal to normal position and the disease disappears, is it not results the patient is paying for?

It is not necessary for you to tell the Chiropractor where or what your trouble is. He can tell you. Call and investigate; costs you nothing and it may mean health and happiness.
